Housing benefit changed from 1 January 2012 for single people aged 25 to 34 who rent from a private landlord

Find out how the changes affect you.

The Government made changes to the way housing benefit is calculated for those who are single and aged 25 to 34 and rent from a private landlord.

Nov 2018

What do the changes mean?

From 1 January 2012 single people aged from 25 to 34 are only entitled to the housing benefit shared accommodation rate. By single people we mean someone who is not living:

- as a couple
- with dependent children.

The shared accommodation rate is based on the level of local rents for properties that are not self contained. This usually means that there is a shared

- Kitchen,
- Bathroom,
- Toilet or
- Living room

If you already get housing benefit at the one bedroom rate your housing benefit may reduce if you move to the shared accommodation rate.

If your housing benefit is paid directly to your landlord, the amount your landlord gets for your rent could go down.

If you are getting, or thinking of claiming housing benefit, you need to consider this change before you renew or take a new tenancy agreement with a private landlord.

Who do the changes affect?

These changes will affect you if you:

- rent accommodation from a private landlord
- already get housing benefit, or are going to make a new claim
- are single
- do not normally have children living with you
- are under 35 years old
- live in a self contained property

These changes will not affect you if you:

- rent from a local authority or housing association
- are aged under 22 and have been in care
- live in supported housing provided by a housing association, registered charity, voluntary organisation or a county council (in England)

- get the severe disability premium in your benefit because you are entitled to the middle or higher rate care component of the Disability Living Allowance.
- need an extra bedroom for a carer who provides you with the overnight care you need but who doesn't normally live with you
- have spent at least three months in a
  - ∞ homeless hostel or
  - ∞ hostel specialising in rehabilitating and resettling within the community. To benefit from this exemption you need to have been offered and accepted support services to enable you to be rehabilitated or resettled in the community
- are managed under active multi agency management under the Multi Agency Public Protection Arrangements.
